Dubbo's Fallen WW1 Soldiers

As part of the commemoration of the Anzac Centenary, Macquarie Regional Library has undertaken a project to identify men and women from Dubbo who served in the First World War and to create a list of those who made the ultimate sacrifice for their service (and were either killed in action, died of wounds, or died of illness).

Research showed that 21 of these soldiers were killed while on active service in Gallipoli. More...

One of these soldiers, Private James Rhodes, a New Zealander, who had been working at the Court House Hotel in Dubbo before he enlisted, wrote a letter to Dr N. S. King in
